GOV. BECKHAM INAUGURATED
AS EXECUTIVE OF KENTUCKY.

A Novel Feature of Parade Was Presence of Colored Democratic Marching Club.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 11.—Gov. Beckham was inaugurated to-day for a term of three years. The inaugural ceremonies were the most elaborate witnessed in this state in the present decade. The inaugural parade was made up of all the military companies of the state, three regiments, the Duckworth Club, of Cincinnati, political clubs from this city, Louisville and other towns of the state, civic societies and distinguished citizens on horse back forming a procession of great length. When the inaugural procession reached the Statehouse the oath of office was administered to the Governor by chief justice Hazlewood in the presence of thousands who had gathered to witness the ceremonies. After the ceremonies at the inaugural stand the Governor reviewed the troops.

Gov. Beckham in his inaugural address devoted himself entirely to state matters. He thanked the people for the honor conferred upon him by electing him Governor for the remaining part of the present term. He promised the state a clean and honest administration of its executive affairs in a spirit of fairness and tolerance, with no feeling of partisan hate or malice, with the sincere desire to remove as far as possible all friction and ill-feeling from among the people. He briefly stated some of the leading policies by which he will be guided in the administration of the office, and promised his cordial support in the development of Kentucky's industrial interests. He said it would be his policy to keep the State Guard in a first-class condition, but that the military power should always be in absolute subordination to the civil authorities and shall never be called into active service except as a last resort in carrying out the decrees of judicial tribunals.

A novel feature of the parade was the presence of a colored Democratic marching club. It was made up of Democratic negroes of Frankfort, Lexington and Richmond, headed by a Lexington band and led by C. T. Thomas, of Lexington, and Louis Smith, of Frankfort.

MRS. M. F. ALEXANDER.

Death of This Lost Estimable
Lady Near City.

Mrs. Mary F. Alexander, widow of the late Col. C. B. Alexander, died at her home on the Canton Pike, three miles south-west of the city Wednesday afternoon, after a lingering illness, aged about 65 years.

Mrs. Alexander was a daughter of the late John Lewis, one of the early settlers of the county, and at the time of her marriage to Col. Alexander was Mrs. Mary F. Jackson. She was a sister of Mr. C. T. Lewis, of Florida. She leaves an adopted daughter, Mrs. Gabe L. Campbell.

Mrs. Alexander was a pious Christian, noted for her cheerful and lovable disposition and leaves a wide circle of friends to mourn her loss.

She had been a member of the Ninth street Presbyterian church in this city for many years.

The funeral was held at her late residence at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon by Dr. W. L. Nourse, and assisted by Elmer H. D. Smith. The interment took place in the family grave-yard.

Rev. Yancey Wilson has been granted a leave of absence from pastoral work this winter by the two churches (Second Advent Christian) of which he is pastor. He left this week on an evangelistic tour of the south and west and during his absence will visit Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Indian Territory.

NOTES

Of the Christian County Hunting Club.

The Fiftieth Annual Hunt Taken in Arkansas in November 1900.

Owing to the rumors of "Black tongue" among the deer in and around our old camping grounds in Arkansas the hunt was postponed until we could obtain more satisfactory information by wire and mail. We at last learned that the reports were false. On the morning of the 14th November we met at Pembroke where a special train of three cars awaited us. Horses, mules, dogs, servants and camp equipage were soon loaded. The scene was suggestion of lively sport and gay baying of hounds, baying of horns, farewells and good wishes of the unfortunate who were left behind, we were soon off on special train for Memphis. The day was bright and auspicious. The only thing to mar anticipations was the failure of some of our men to get and successful huntsman to go with us. The postponement and probability of our not going at all, had in some cases effected an entire change in personal arrangements. With much sorrow and regret, we found at Pembroke that Capt. P. B. Basset, of the 10th Missouri, could not go. But (as always) unselfish and untiring, and thoughtful of the comfort of others he was at the depot with dogs to lend us, and feed for man and beast, smoking tobacco for the smokers and chewing twists for the "chawers". With his usual energy and dash, especially push, he soon had us loaded. As he bade us farewell, and gave us the last handshake, we knew that our noble friend was experiencing the hardest trial of his life. After twenty years of happy hunting experiences and successes, to see him without him was a sorry trial to him as well as to us more fortunate than we hope it may never occur again.

We left Pembroke with only four members of the regular hunt. At Clarksville we picked up four more, making eight, and at sixteen, our usual complement. At roll call the following answered:

CAPT. S. R. WHITE, the Nestor and captain of the hunt. After forty-nine years of membership, only missing one hunt in the fifty, as good as new. If the boys will only follow where he leads, they can find plenty to do. He has lost them, they will never know it from him. Although seventy nine winters have frosted his head they have not dimmed his eye nor shaken his nerve. He will ride through more brush and vines and thicker cane from sunup to sundown than any man or woman, and an' e'usure or seven up 'till ten o'clock every night.

LYMAN MCCOMBS, Commissary General, Pembroke; he gives no bond and his accounts are always correct and paid.

Is a good feeder.

He is a good shot.

He is a good rider.

He is a good dog.

He is a good woodsman.

He is a good companion.

He is a good mate.

He is a good person.

THE PHONOGRAPH.

Prominent Role Played by It in the Recent Campaign.

"The phonographic record played quite a prominent role in the recent campaign," said a St. Louis electrician at one of the hotels the other evening, according to the New Orleans Times-Democrat. "It was used to some extent four years ago, but it was then in the experimental stage as a political adjunct, and the reproductions were confined almost entirely to Bryan's 'cross of gold' oration. This time extensive preparations were made in advance, and each party had dozens of selections from which to choose. The most popular were brief extracts from addresses by the different candidates, but campaign songs, declarations of principles and jokes with the laugh on either side one wishes have been sold by the hundred. The demand was principally from the country and small towns, where the phonograph is used to liven up the meetings of political clubs, and in a number of states congressional candidates have employed the machine for sending messages of good cheer to constituents in remote parts of their districts. I spent several hours in a record factory, and was greatly interested in watching them turn out a new set of selections. It was a curious spectacle. One of the first things undertaken was an eight-minute Bryan speech. The operating-room was long and narrow, with a huge brass horn at one end and a sounding board at the other. A little baldheaded man sat upon a stool in front of the horn, holding a sheet of typewritten copy, and behind him at irregular intervals were seven or eight men armed with megaphones. In plain view was a large dial, divided into minutes, to mark the time. When everything was ready the little man began to declaim, speaking in a very deep, slow voice, with distinct pauses between the words, which completely robbed the selection of anything like dramatic quality. Now and then he raised his hand, and the claps with megaphones bellowed solemnly into space. It was a most depressing scene, but when the cylinder was put into the reproducing machine I could hardly believe my ears. The speech was delivered very rapidly but with beautifully distinct enunciation, and the voice sounded fully an octave higher than that of the little bald-headed fellow on the stool. It was superbly clear and ringing and was very like the tones of the great Nebraskan himself. Even the applause had taken a new spirit and animation and sounded like the thunderous interruptions of a vast assemblage. I was greatly puzzled, but the miracle was easily explained. All that was done was to speed up the machine about a third faster than it had been going when the record was taken. That not only raised the pitch, but secured a distinctness unobtainable by any other means. It seems that these are tricks in all trades but ours."

THE GENTLE READER.

Attack and Catch Lobsters Which Are Just Out of Their Shells.

It is probably news to the majority of people to know that the red or rock codfish is a bitter enemy of the lobster that has just crawled out of his shell and is soft and unable to protect himself. During shedding time, says the Lewiston Journal, these lobsters crawl under projecting rocks where the seaweed and kelp are thick and where they find protected places in which to grow through the process of slipping out of their old shells and taking on a new coat of mail, so to speak. For some days after shedding lobsters are weak and unable to cope with those fish that wage war upon them. This fact the codfish seem intuitively to know, and they will swarm around these retreats in great numbers and wait for the shredders to crawl out. An old lobster fisherman said the other morning that many times he had stopped his dory over a large number of these red codfish and watched their operations. He had even dropped his line down and dangled tempting bait within a few feet of them. Unless it happened to fall directly in front of their noses, however, they would seldom take it, as they were after lobster meat. When the thin-shelled lobsters would crawl out from beneath the protecting seaweed the codfish would dart at them and strike their fierce blows with their tails, disabling them completely. They would then fall to and devour the helpless crustaceans. This performance the lobster fisherman said he had witnessed many times.

The Book Agent.

"If I were a young man," said a book agent to Cliff Holbert yesterday, "I would have this book if I had to go without shoes or coat in order to buy it." "No, you wouldn't," said Holbert; "if you were a young man, and not a book agent, you would try as hard as any of us to resist the book agents." —Atchison Globe.

WHERE RUSKIN LIVED.

Home of the Great Art Critic Not at All Artistic.

The house is miles away from everywhere, and even when you are there it is very difficult to get in; you enter at the back, and the front door is where back doors usually are. I had pictured it inside as the brightest example of exquisite taste, and thought it would be a lesson in beautiful esthetic decoration, says a writer in the London Chronicle. But the furniture was simply appalling.

I have to this day nightmare recollections of an awful green tablecloth, with a gilt edge to it, and a cheap, forlorn little vase in the center, and there was a terrible sideboard and hideous chairs and couches, all huddled up in faded chintz. Truly the master deserved us from early Victorian bad taste, but he himself remained in bondage to all his days.

As for the wall-papers, they were enough to make Morris turn in his grave. There was a legend attaching to one (designed, I think, by the master himself), representing very realistic bunches of flowers, with de-testable scrollwork zigzagging all about; the flowers were so naturalistic that misguided bees had been known to dash at the windows and hurt themselves onto the deceptive roses. Once, being much tormented by this repulsive wall paper and the aforesaid legend, I ventured to ask why his roses were right, though he had demonstrated that Zenith grapes were wrong, and I was gliding softly into his pet theory of "representation versus imitation," when he burst into laughter, clapped his hands and said: "His bees were wise and I was a fool," whereupon I changed the conversation.

The chairs and sofas I treated with distant respect, as I knew "papa and mamma" and "old nurse" had sat on them, and so they were evermore sacred. I have an etching of one special chair in which a great part of "Modern Painters" was written, and I never look at it without taking my hat off. Amid the bewildering ugly surroundings were exquisite drawings and rare paintings by Turner, Burne-Jones, Prout and Titian, cabinets of shells and minerals, and the delightful incongruity of it all was a constant surprise and charm.

The New Zealand government has succeeded in putting a check on the influx of Austrians. A large number were landed in Sydney, but the New Zealand government refused to allow them to land unless the shipping companies carrying them guaranteed their maintenance for three months. Naturally the shipping companies refused to book Austrian passengers.

PHOSPHORESCENT BACTERIA.

Microbes That, Kept Under Proper Circumstances, Will Light a Room.

M. Raphael Dubois, in a paper before the Academie des Sciences, describes a series of experiments in which he obtains a luminous source of considerable intensity by the use of certain microbes or photobacteria, which have the power of emitting light. These are allowed to propagate in a liquid bouillon of special composition. When the experiment is made with good microbe cultures to start with, and at the proper temperature, the development is rapid, and the liquid soon contains the microbes in sufficient quantity to give the luminous effect. A glass vessel is used to contain the liquid, preferably with plain sides, and it is possible in this way to light a room strongly enough to distinguish the features of a person placed at several yards distance, and newspaper type may be read.

The light has scarcely any calorific effect, and the properties of its chemical rays seem to be also feeble, as it requires several hours' exposure with an instantaneous plate to obtain a good image; on the other hand, the rays seem to possess considerable penetrating power, as impressions may be made upon the plate even though screens of wood or cardboard are interposed. A sheet of aluminum is, however, not traversed by the rays.

In these experiments it is important that the bouillon in which the microbes are propagated should be well prepared. It should contain water, salt, an almanac analogous to glycerin or mannite, another represented by the peptones or asparagine, and an almanac containing phosphorus, such as nucleic or phosphates, as well as traces of the mineral compounds which enter into the composition of such organisms. The use of peptone is attended with some difficulty, as putrefaction is likely to set in and destroy the action; if it is used, it should be aerated by a current of sterilized air and slightly agitated.

With asparagine the best results have been obtained, and the solution keeps well, giving the phosphorescent effect in free air; its cost, however, is a disadvantage. If well prepared, the phosphorescent solution will keep for a long time without deteriorating; the experimenter has kept some samples in a basement at a low temperature for more than six months. He expects to be able to increase the luminous effect, and thinks that a practical outcome may result from these experiments.

FOUND—A PEARL.

Two Rival Lunch Counter Proprietors Companion in Misery.

It was at Jean's little lunch counter. The man who had been quietly devouring a small fry suddenly sprang from his stool and shouted:

"I have found it!" Jean left the chair behind the cash register and came over to find the cause of the guest's excitement.

"What is it?" he asked. "The biggest pearl found in an oyster this season," and he placed the opaque object in his palm for Jean's inspection.

"A pearl! Ah, eit is one beauty." "A gem of the first water."

"One hundred dollars would be a moderate price for such a jewel."

"Will you sell it to me for fifty cents?"

"Fifty? Why, I told you it was worth double fifty."

"Yes, but you found it in here."

The man with the pearl appeared to be in deep thought, says the Chicago Daily News. At last he placed the pearl in Jean's hand and said:

"Well, considering that I found it in your oysters it is only right that I should do the square thing. But what use are you going to make of it?"

"I will place it in ze window for one advertisement. I will write on a card and ze people will know my oysters have ze pearls. I get ze trade of Bumgarten across ze street."

"Great idea! But give me the fifty and the pearl is yours."

Jean fished $40 from a greasy bag and the remainder from the cash register. With mumbled thanks the lucky man departed. Ten minutes later the pearl adorned the window. A neat card informed the public that the rare jewel had been found in one of Jean's oysters. All morning a crowd stood before the window and Jean was proud. But at noon Jean noticed a similar crowd in front of his rival's establishment.

"He is jealous," said Jean, slipping on his coat and hat, "and he fix up something to make one look."

But there was a surprise in store for Jean. In Bumgarten's window was an exact duplicate of the Frenchman's pearl.

"Bumgarten!" called Jean, "where you get ze pearl?"

The Teuton's chest expanded with pride.

"Dot bear was found in meat oysters. I pay der man not found it $10 and keep der bear."

"But I paid fifty for one ze same size. What kind of a man found your pearl, Bumgarten?"

"He wore a golf cap and a blue coat."

"Then eit is ze same man. Bumgarten, something eis funny. Let's take ze pearls to ze jeweler."

The Teuton agreed and Jean hurried over after his attraction. Together they hastened to the jeweler in Van Buren street.

"Are ze ze genuine pearls?" asked Jean.

The jeweler examined the pearls and smiled.

"Who said they were pearls?"

"We bought dem as pearls."

"Then, gentlemen, you have been sold. These are only smoked glass beads. They are intended to hold puff neckties together."

Then Jean and Bumgarten went out to tell the police all about it.

When the Deaf Hear.

It is said that persons afflicted with certain forms of deafness can hear perfectly in the midst of a tumult. A locomotive engineer, upon examination by a medical expert, was found to be very deaf, and, although he protested that he could hear perfectly well on his engine, he was suspended from duty. Some time afterward, having vainly tried to get cured, he applied for reinstatement, again urging the fact of his perfect hearing while on duty. Finally, in order to satisfy him, the physician rode with him upon a locomotive for a long distance and put him to every possible test. To the doctor's surprise, he found the man able not only to hear ordinary sounds without difficulty, but also to distinguish whispers and faint movements that were inaudible to his companion.

Miss Clara Barton's plan to have twentieth century watch meetings is rapidly spreading to all parts of the country. Her idea is to have the people assemble at their churches, lodges or homes on the night of Dec. 31, and watch the birth of the new century at midnight. Many will act upon her suggestion. She does not prescribe the details, leaving the size of the crowds to individual preference. There will no doubt be many meetings in which two will make up the crowds to act as death watches for the nineteenth century. They will assemble in a dimly lighted parlor, while the old man foots the bill for the twelve-cent coal consumed. Some of these watch parties will doubtless celebrate the event—the only one of the kind they will ever witness—in a manner that might shock Miss Clara if she should happen to peep in as the Bridge of Time is crossed.

Married in Clarksville—Affair Not An Elopement.

Mr. A. J. Hollingsworth, of Princeton, and Miss Georgia Thelma Hargraves, of Casky, were married in Clarksville Wednesday. Mr. Hollingsworth came up to this city Tuesday afternoon and early Wednesday morning the couple accompanied by Mr. Shell Smith and wife of Princeton, drove over to Clarksville, where the nuptial knot was tied. The affair, it seems was not an elopement. The bridal party returned here the same day and will make their home in Princeton. The groom formerly lived near Casky, but recently sold his farm to Mr. R. L. Moseley, and returned to Princeton, where his parents reside.

The bride is a sister of Mrs. W. A. Reed, of near Casky, and is a very pretty and popular lady.

A piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound to the affected parts is superior to any plaster. When troubled with lame back or pains in the side or chest, give it a trial and you are certain to be more than pleased with the prompt relief which it affords. Pain Balm also cures rheumatism. One application gives relief. For sale by R. C. Hardwick.

WRECK ON I. C.

Train Derailed Near Dawson Eight People Slightly Injured.

The Illinois Central limited from Cincinnati to New Orleans was wrecked about 2 o'clock a. m. Tuesday at Isley, three miles east of Dawson Springs. The accident was caused by the front truck on the engine tank jumping the track and splitting the switch, thereby derailing the two cars behind. The cars running on the ground, smashed the steps and brake rigging. The chair car, filled with passengers, left the trucks and fell upon its side, but all the occupants escaped without serious injury. Following is a list of the injured:

C. W. Northrop, Colfax, Ind.: head cut above the left eye.

Mrs. A. T. Coats, Princeton, Ky.: left shoulder injured.

J. W. Scott, Battle Creek, Mich.: left cheek bruised.

Ed Menifee, Covington, Tenn.: both knee cut.

C. F. Underwood, Paducah, Illinois Central conductor, riding on the train; scalp wounds.

G. H. Simmons, Owensboro, cut over left eye.

James Franklin, Cincinnati, Pullman conductor; scalp wound.

The injured received immediate attention, and the passengers went on, being transferred to the northbound train, which was turned back, its passengers being transferred to the Central City accommodation for Louisville.

The wreck on the road was cleared by 8 o'clock Tuesday morning.

AN ACTOR'S STORY

How "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" changed the Probable Result of an Election.

Every time my eye strikes some paper of "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" I remarked a member of a company playing at the Grand, "the experience of a number of years ago are recollect. It was in those days when I thirsted for fame before the footlights and was willing to do any role from Simon Legree in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" to the super in a comic opera. "We were booked to play in an Illinois town one night and the town was in a fever of excitement over the election which was to be held the next day. There were two tickets in the field, license and no-license, the former favoring the licensing of saloons and the latter opposing it. You know that "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" teaches a moral, the awful effects of drink. We weren't in town ten minutes when a committee from the licensing party waited on our manager and offered him $100 if he wouldn't show. The manager had a shrewd head and he reserved his answer. He told the manager of the theatre about it and the manager was with the no-license party. He offered Martin $150 to put on the piece and Martin, appreciating what a good thing he had announced that the show would not go on, as the bids were. The two factions bid against each other strong and finally Martin agreed to put on the show for $125. The town was flooded with dodgers, the doors were thrown open and the whole town flocked in and remained throughout the show speakeasy. It looked as though the license people would win the day, but after the town saw the show the result was changed and the no-license party won out five to one." This popular play will be presented at Holland's Opera House this (Friday) evening.

Mr. C. A. Cosby has returned from a three months' trip through Texas and other Southern States in the interest of his house.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

It cures the croup at once. For bronchitis, whooping-cough, hoarseness, asthma, pleurisy, weak lungs, loss of voice, and consumption, there is no remedy like it. A 25c. bottle will cure a cold; the 50c. size is better for a cold that has been hanging on. But the dollar bottle is more economical in the long run.

better man he was made a proton secretary.

We organized with eight, leaving eight unfortunate at home. All good fellows and we feel sorry for them but can't help it. Hope they will have better luck next time or better excuses.

Leaving Clarksville at 7 p. m. 15th we were at Memphis at 7 a. m. next morning. Went aboard the palatial steamer "Kate Adams," and left at 5 o'clock for Old Napoleon, about one hundred miles below Memphis. By the way, we took a boy 17 years old, went with his father to Hot Springs. In those days there were very few railroads and we went down the Mississippi river to Napoleon, which was then the county seat of Boone county, Arkansas. It was then a town of about the size of Hopkinsville, not a hotel or two, and two hotels, hospital and many brick and stone residence and roads leading out into the country. By the continual changes and washes of the river the whole town went into the mighty Mississippi and to-day there is not a brick, stone, chimney or post to mark where a town once stood. It is hard to realize such complete ob-literation, as complete as the fate of Sodom and Gomorrah, but we hope not for the same cause! Convincing us more and more that what God permits, He can destroy. The Arkansas river which once emptied into the Mississippi at Napoleon is now empty into White river some twenty miles above. The country around Napoleon is a rich alluvial soil, with a continuous succession of fine plantations making a bale or two bales to the acre, with palatial homes of rich and happy people. It is now a howling wilderness covered from the eight to the deep with sand and grown up in cottonwoods. No roads, no plantations, all desolate and deserted, a home only for the deer, bear and wolf with now and then a solitary trapper or fisherman in many cases, no more intelligent than the beasts around them.

DEATH OF W. B. RADFORD.

End Come After Illness of Several Months.

Mr. W. B. Radford died at his home in Longview Wednesday night, after an illness of about six months. He was in the seventy-sixth year of his age and had been postmaster at Longview for probably thirty years.

He leaves a wife and five children: Dr. W. B., Miss Annie, McElroy, Mrs. Ed Cross and Mrs. John P. Bell.

Mr. Radford was one among the most prominent and influential citizens of the county and in his death that community has lost one of its most useful men.

The remains will be brought to this city this morning and the interment will take place in Hopewell cemetery at 11 o'clock.

"SI PLUNKARD."

Something Out of Ordinary in Amusement Line.

On the evening of Tuesday, December 18, at Holland's Opera House will be given something new and out of the ordinary in the amusement line. The play is a Yankee comedy, entitled "Si Plunkard," with the young Yankee character comedian, Mr. J. C. Lewis, in the title role, supported by a strong company of clever comedians. The comedy is in four acts, depicting New England farm life and some of the more vicious aspects of city life. The first and second acts take place on Si's farm and contain many of those pleasant rural pictures that are so pleasing and attractive to a city audience. In the third act a perfect working threshing machine is introduced. The banging and buzzing of machine and the flying of the straw is so realistic that it carries the mind of the auditor back to scenes and incidents of days gone by. During the action of the comedy a new and novel specialties are introduced by a company of comedians, and during the acts a rare musical treat will be offered by a superb orchestra providing an evening's entertainment of mirth and music unequalled for excellence.

KILLED TWELVE DEER.

Gracey Club Had a Most Successful Hunt.

The Gracey Hunting Club returned from their annual Arkansas outing Monday. The hunt was the most successful one ever taken by the club and was enjoyed immensely by every one who went on the trip. They found deer very plentiful and killed twelve, three of them being very large bucks. The country also abounded in small game and many squirrels, ducks and quail were bagged. There were about twenty sportsmen in the party.

Holt-Marquess.

Mr. Everett Holt and Miss Alisia Marquess were married near Era postoffice Wednesday evening by Esq. B. F. Fuller.

SHE MENDED IT.

A Relative Who Did Not Appreciate a Fine Oriental Rug.

There is a woman out on the West side who collects rugs as other women collect lace or China, and she is ready any time to go without a new gown or wear a hat two seasons if by doing so there is a chance that she may add to her collection. The hopefullest thing about her is that she has little money—little money that is for high-priced bits of oriental carpets for if she had and her menia was as strong as it is now, there would not be an inch of wall or floor or furniture in her whole house not hidden beneath a rug. But as it is, she is obliged to make her purchases with discretion and only after long scrapping on personal and household allowances so that the acquirement of a new rug is a distinct event. A little while ago she bought a rare Keelin or some such name as that—wonderful colors skillfully mingled and woven together with the characteristic stitch that leaves an open space between each contrasting band. It was a lovely old thing and the woman hung over it with delight, throwing it over a table and going into raptures over its beauty, reveling in the way the mahogany of the table gleamed through the meshes of the openwork stripes, rejoicing in the soft blues and old reds of the faded fabric. That was a lovely old thing and the woman hung over it with delight, throwing it over a table and going into raptures over its beauty, reveling in the way the mahogany of the table gleamed through the meshes of the openwork stripes, rejoicing in the soft blues and old reds of the faded fabric. That was the reaction or whether it was merely a cold taking in the draughty auction room where the dark Syrian had disposed of his wares that was responsible, I don't know, but at any rate the woman was taken ill and went to bed for weeks, leaving the reins of household government in the hands of her relative. From the noise of brooms and dustpans that reached her bedroom, she knew that at least things were being kept clean, but she had no definite reports from below until the day when, still weak, her husband carried her downstairs, the relative making vague explanations from the landing. The grocer had been changed and a cheaper laundry had been found, and as for the state of the vegetable bins in the cellar there was no word in the language capable of expressing their degradation.

"But the worst thing was that old table cover," the aunt went on, blithely. "At first I thought I'd sell it to the rag man and buy a nice chenille one I saw marked down at a store, but then I concluded that it would be cheaper to mend it. So I did, and it's as good as new."

The owner of the old table cover had heard only the first sentence for, gaining sudden strength, she had rushed to the door of the living room and looked in. There on the table was the precious Keelin—"as good as new," with every one of its openwork stripes carefully darned up with bright red Germantown wool.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

CHINESE FASHIONS.

No Change Made in Dress Designs in Twenty-Four Centuries.

La Mode in the celestial empire, like everything else, is old and well established, as old as the Yellow river itself, and older than the Book of Rites which regulates it and everything else in China. The latest designs were introduced or revived by Confucius in 478 B. C., who seemed, by the way, to have a finger in every Chinese pie, and a turn for Grundyism as well as philosophy. The date of the present styles would suggest that China is not a dressy country, and the fact that there is but one style of dress for man and woman from Peking to Hainan, would confirm the suggestion.

Given this one model, then, it stands to reason that a Chinese dame can be original only in the length and breadth of her wide-sleeved garment, and gorgeous only in her sturts. And since her social opportunities are exceedingly limited, by the time she has provided herself with a few gowns of silk and embroidery, after the style which is warranted good, for her Hieting, she has left only her face, fording nail and feet in which to excel. All her ambition is centered in the last, much to the detriment of the first.

She lives and often dies for her small feet. They are her stamp of refinement and beauty, no matter if her face is pinched and old with the pain of them. Anyone can have a healthy face, but to few is given the precious privilege of being luxurious enough to live a life of useless agony.—Kan-

CASTORIA. The Kind You Have Always Bought by Charles Fletcher

Bottle beer comes high, but it also helps to pay the war tax.

Nature has just one pigment on her palette which she uses to add all the marvelous tints of beauty, and that one pigment is the blood. The shell-like pink beneath the finger nails, the delicate rose of the cheek, the cherry ripeness of the lips, the iridescent brilliancy of the eyes, are all produced by the blood. The color of the blood, however, will depend upon the purity of the colors with which it is painted, so the permanence of beauty depends on the purity of the blood. Paint, powder and cosmetics won't avail to preserve beauty. Beauty begins in the blood. Dr. Pierce's Great Medical Discovery is a beautiful one. It is a new idea, a new way of looking at things. It gives a new idea of what pure blood with which alone she can paint. The use of this medicine will cleanse the skin, heighten the complexion, brighten the eyes, and give face all form that radiance of health which is the truest of beauty. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are very effective in ridding the system of clogging residuum, which accumulates with constipated habit.

She lives and often dies for her small feet. They are her stamp of refinement and beauty, no matter if her face is pinched and old with the pain of them. Anyone can have a healthy face, but to few is given the precious privilege of being luxurious enough to live a life of useless agony.—Kan-

ACT OF COURTESY MISJUDGED.

A Southerner Tries to Render a Woman Service and is Rebuffed.

"Customs here in the north with regard to some of the little things of life are sadly different from those which obtain in our land," remarked a dignified Virginian on Thursday to a New York Times reporter who had witnessed his unmerited discomfiture.

A plain-looking little woman was struggling along with a clumsy telescope bag to her own exhaustion and the discomfort of other passengers who were leaving a Cortlandt street ferryboat. The Virginian, even in a gentleman, politely offered to carry the bag, but was withered in an instant by the look of indignation and resentment which disfigured the woman's son decided to get married. For my part, I think it would be an inhuman sort of a son who would insist upon having his wedding take place at a time when his mother had no teeth, but that is neither here nor there. The invitations were sent out and the preparations went on apace. At home, isolated from her kind, sat the woman of the empty lower jaw. If it had been possible she would have gnashed her teeth with rage at the dentist, but circumstances prevented, and so she sat and thought until out of her thought came an inspiration. She would make her own teeth. Lower teeth don't count for much as appearances go, anyway, she argued, and if a woman who could use a jackknife in her youth could not wield one in her old age it was a pity. How she did it you're not to ask me, for all I know about it is that that woman did go to her son's wedding and she wore a set of false teeth—gleaming white regular molars and bicuspids newly carved out of a round marrow bone taken from the breakfast beefsteak.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

ETIQUETTE OF SHOOTING.
Aburd Formalities That Are Imposed Upon the Sport in Germany.

The etiquette of shooting in England is sometimes a little difficult to fathom, and in some respects is a little absurd, especially in the most aristocratic form, the shooting of reared pheasants. But English etiquette, says the London Globe, even its stringency, is as nothing to the form which prevails in Germany. A book on the etiquette of the sport, published last year by a German sportsman, is now, it is said, being adopted by all the owners of the larger shoots, in spite of the absurd formalities, as they seem to us, of its regulations. For instance, the invitations to shoot are sent out in printed forms which contain the place of rendezvous, the hour, the kind of game that may be shot, and last, but not least, the laws laid down regarding the conduct of the sportsman. There are a dozen things that each shooter is forbidden to do, such as to load before all the guns are in their places, or to move without orders, and for each infringement of any of these regulations a fixed fine—generally five marks—is laid down. As if this were not sufficient, further penalties are appointed for each shot missed. The effect must be strange. One can imagine a really careful German never letting his gun go off unless the shot were of the easiest, and waiting patiently for a hare to stop. Then what opportunities are given to that type of man—already too common—who has seen his bird tower in the next field but two! But perhaps the German host has a keeper to take down each man's aggregate of hits, misses and infringements.

THE ORIGIN OF THE DUDE.
The word "duke," as applied to a pop or exquisitely, came suddenly into use about 1882-3, and all that we learn from the dictionaries is that its actual origin is not recorded. The Century Dictionary says that it "perhaps originated in London, England," while the New English Dictionary expresses the more general belief that it came into vogue in New York about the beginning of 1883. Considering the number of German immigrants into the United States we should naturally suspect it to have been suggested by some German dialect, says Walter W. Skeat, in the Atheneum. The problem of its origin does not seem to be difficult. It can hardly be other than an abbreviated form of dudendop, a blockhead, a common term of depreciation in many parts.

MADE HER OWN FALSE TEETH.

A Woman Made Herself Presentable for Her Son's Wedding.

I can't tell whether this is going to strike you as humorously horrible or as horribly humorous, for I've had times of seeing it both ways myself; but at any rate, as an illustration of ingenuity in time of need, I don't believe I have ever heard anything that quite comes up to this story of a woman who made herself a set of false teeth. The necessity arose because after her lower teeth had been extracted the dentist failed to keep his word promptly, and the making of the porcelain and gold set that was to replace them was delayed for a long time. In the meantime the woman's son decided to get married. For my part, I think it would be an inhuman sort of a son who would insist upon having his wedding take place at a time when his mother had no teeth, but that is neither here nor there. The invitations were sent out and the preparations went on apace. At home, isolated from her kind, sat the woman of the empty lower jaw. If it had been possible she would have gnashed her teeth with rage at the dentist, but circumstances prevented, and so she sat and thought until out of her thought came an inspiration. She would make her own teeth. Lower teeth don't count for much as appearances go, anyway, she argued, and if a woman who could use a jackknife in her youth could not wield one in her old age it was a pity. How she did it you're not to ask me, for all I know about it is that that woman did go to her son's wedding and she wore a set of false teeth—gleaming white regular molars and bicuspids newly carved out of a round marrow bone taken from the breakfast beefsteak.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

RIBS HELD BY RIVETS.

Unusual Operation Recently Performed at the Paterson (N. J.) General Hospital.

If John Christian survives the operation performed at the Paterson general hospital, Paterson, N. J., he will be through the remaining years of his life with three ribs patched up with metal. Christian is a watchman at Gausch's dye works in Paterson. He was set upon one night about three weeks ago and brutally beaten. The robbers were trying to make their escape from the factory, but Christian, who is more than 50 years old, stubbornly resisted them and suffered severely in consequence, says the New York World.

When he was taken to the general hospital it was found that three ribs

SURGICAL TRIUMPH.

(Diagram Showing How Christian's Ribs Were Patched.)

had been broken in two places, causing them to sink into the chest. The pressure on his heart was dangerous. More than this, the doctors found that the broken ribs had penetrated the lung.

When Christian grew weaker and weaker each day the physicians decided that the easiest way to stop the operation. The broken ribs must be raised so that they would join with the fragments which still retained their position in the diaphragm. This is always considered a delicate operation, and when the patient is in a weakened condition it has been necessary to actually suture the broken bones with metal, the operation is considered a very precarious one. It was necessary to put a metal band around each rib and weld these metal bands together with an artificial metallic rib.

While this operation is a very delicate and difficult one, "it is not new in surgery," said one of the surgeons at the hospital to a reporter. "It is not new in surgery. There are many persons walking around to-day who have metal patch-work holding their bones together.

"Whether the patient will live or not does not depend upon the operation, but upon his ability to bear the weakened state brought on by pneumonia. He is now in a dangerous condition, but if he lives 48 hours he will doubtless recover and go through life with the metallic gear on his ribs."

CANINE DENTISTRY.

English Bulldog. Owned by a Chicago Man, to Be Supplied with Artificial Molars.

"Handsome," the English bulldog owned by Harry D. Platt, 4829 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, holds the record for having more gold in its mouth than any other dog in existence. In a few days Dr. C. F. P. O'Connor will compensate some bridge work, which is expected to put the dog's teeth in good condition, at a cost of $25 to the owner.

A few days ago Dr. O'Connor put some gold crowns on the sharp teeth

"HANDSOME" AT EASE.

(Chicago Dog with Gold-Capped Teeth in His Mouth.)

of the unprepossessing animal. The dog climbed into the dentist's chair without realizing what was about to take place. Its owner held its jaws while the dentist worked, and soon the dog had three as pretty crowns as even a high-bred bulldog could ask for.

Thursday, when Mr. Platt went driving, "handsome" sat in the front of the vehicle, and put his nose too close to the spokes and a yelp of pain followed.

An examination showed that it had lost three teeth in the contact. Mr. Platt took the animal over to Dr. O'Connor for repairs.

The dentist decided that some new tools would be necessary for the work and these have been ordered.

Handsome is a short, homely-looking bulldog, 18 months of age. Its present master paid $50 for it, but would not part with the animal for several thousand dollars.

The merchants of the city are working with the railroad officials to put on a train from Evansville to Hopkinsville leaving Evansville in the morning early and returning in the afternoon. This train would be a great convenience to the traveling public and we trust that the arrangements may be effected.—Madisonville Hustler.

About five years ago I was troubled with constipation of the lower bowel," says C. T. Chisholm, 484 Dearborn Ave., Chicago, and although I consulted several eminent physicians who prescribed for me, I found their remedies failed to in any way relieve me, and the almost became chronic. After suffering several months, one day concluded to try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and I beg to assure you that I was most agreeably surprised to find after taking two doses of the remedy that I was completely relieved of the disease that had cost me so much trouble and annoyance. I am thankful to say that I have not suffered from it since." For sale by R. C. Hardwick.
